Business at OECD committed to OECD digital tax project

Paris, 31st January 2019 – Business welcomes the OECD/G20 policy note Addressing the Tax Challenges of the Digitalisation of the Economy approved by the Inclusive Framework (IF) on BEPS, reaffirming commitment to a multilateral solution to addressing the tax challenges of the digitalization of the economy.

This important initiative will impact all businesses and is of critical importance to the integrity of the international tax system. We believe the OECD Inclusive Framework can reach international consensus in this area, and we are committed to engaging a diverse and effective business network in the consultative process going forward.

“Broad consensus on measures for taxation of the digitalizing economy is crucial to ensure innovation, growth, and stem instances of double taxation. In this context measures should also enable tax administrations to collect revenue needed for essential and efficient governmental functions,” states Will Morris, Chair, Business at OECD Committee on Taxation and Fiscal Policy.

On 21 January 2019 Business at OECD released 11 foundational principles for international tax measures in the digital age.
